Heartlanders — the estate noticeboard that answers back

A page per Resident Network. Events, notices, bulky waste dates and live weather for one block, in four languages. No app to install, and no login for residents.

9	4	0	~1 min
live government feeds	languages, notices included	logins for residents	twice a week, per estate

What a resident gets

- Their own estate's notices, events and collection dates — not the whole town's.
- Air quality, rain, lightning, dengue, MRT alerts and the next bus, live.
- A question box: "When is bulky waste collected?" — answered from that page, in their language, read aloud if they prefer.
- Lost & found, a sharing cabinet, and a directory of home businesses on the street.
- Report a broken lift or a dead light straight to OneService.

What the RC gets

- Paste a WhatsApp message, or photograph the lift-lobby notice — the form fills itself in.
- Posting once publishes in all four languages, seconds later.
- Resident posts are checked automatically before anyone sees them.
- Views per estate, who is coming to each event, and the questions the page could not answer.
- The pattern behind OneService reports: "eleven lighting faults in Blk 412 this month".

What changes

A WhatsApp group that maxes out and excludes non-users	A page anyone can open, no membership needed
Notices photographed and forwarded until unreadable	Notices on the estate page, with dates that expire themselves
Calling the RN office to ask when bulky waste is	Ask the page and get the date
A lost cat poster taped to the lift	A board that clears itself after 14 days
A fault reported to OneService the RC never hears about	The same report, plus the pattern behind it

What we need from you

Your Resident Network names, a block or postal-code list for each, and one person per estate willing to spend a minute on it twice a week. That is the whole setup.

What it costs

Free for pilot constituencies. Marketplace listings are free during the pilot and will move to a small monthly fee afterwards, agreed with you first.

Your data, plainly

No account to browse. An email is asked for at three moments only. Every retention period is published on the privacy page and enforced nightly. A household's kitchen data cannot be read by any admin, volunteer or superadmin. Drafting, translating and answering use an AI model (Anthropic's Claude) and never post on their own — a draft is not a post until a person presses the button.
